Applications for Patents

From 09/02/2022 to 24/03/2022

The names of applicants are in alphabetical order. In the case of joint applicants, each name is given independently. The title of the invention should not be regarded as an exhaustive indication of the subject-matter. The date immediately following the title is that on which the application was filed; in the case of a divisional application, the filing date of the earlier application is added within parentheses. Where an application has been filed pursuant to Section 127A, the filing date shall be either the date of the originating PCT filing, where applicable, or the date directed by the Controller. Where the application invokes the Paris Convention, the Convention country and priority date(s) claimed are given in square brackets. Where an application claimed the priority of an earlier application filed at this Office, this information is given within the square brackets. The number is that of the application and should be used for correspondence purposes up to the date of grant of a patent. The letter S preceding the number indicates that the application is for a short-term patent. A new number will be given when a patent is granted and this new number should be quoted in all correspondence subsequent to grant.

Applications Published Under Section 28

The following applications become open to public inspection as from the date of this issue of the journal unless otherwise specified. The date given is the date of filing of the application or the earliest priority claimed. Any application made pursuant to Section 127A, where the originating PCT application has been published under that PCT in English, is accorded the PCT publication date of that application. For these Section 127A applications, the publication date is given in bold square brackets.

2020 20200222 WILHELM KULLBERG, A method of heat sealing an inside container closure section liquid proof. 01 October 2020. Int. Cl. (2021.01) B29C 65/02; B65D 5/56.

Patents Granted Under Section 34

The number of a patent is given in heavy type; the letter S preceding the number indicates a short-term patent. The code numbers following the title of each invention are those of the International Patent Classification. The date of filing the application follows the proprietor's name. The patent application number, which follows the date of application in parenthesis, has been superseded by the patent number. In the case of an application claiming the priority of an earlier application, the name of the country where the earlier application was made and the date of the earlier application are shown in square brackets.

By virtue of Section 65(3), the application relating to any short-term patent appearing in the following list whose date of filing is later than the date which is 18 months prior to the date of this issue of the Journal becomes open to public inspection as and from the date of this issue of the Journal.

The main body is designed to hold the vertical blade assembly at the rear of the turbine construction with the front section extended to contain the pontoon configuration that forms the float and buoyancy method of the turbine. The upper deck also allow for the containment of the turbine controls system. At the rear, the pontoon is reinforced/extended downwards to restrict any tipping action when facing the water flow. On both LHS and RHS sides of the rear, both vertical turbine blade assemblies are mounted with a C-Frame fabrication that are also pivoted to allow the raising/lowering of the blade assembly into the water. The complete construction is fabricated from steel with special coating to protect it from the environment in which it will be deployed. All drawings are completed in solidworks - 3D and 2D drafted.

The turbine consists of two vertical axis rotors, each with a required number of blades to suit the power output. The assembly comprises two discs that act as hubs. Turbine blades will be fitted between these two hubs. Water flows across these blades in a manner that generates power and causes the hubs to rotate. The blades are easily removable for maintenance and are mounted on their own bushes to allow them to move freely to the best position for the flow of water with stopper blocks also added to restrict full rotation and maintain an ideal angle. The hubs transmit the power to the PTO shaft. They are secured to the PTO shaft by welded joints. The radial load of the shaft is supported at the bottom on a bearing fixed to a frame and on top on a bearing in a gearbox that is a required distance above the top hub. The thrust load caused by the weight of the turbine is supported on a gearbox bearing.

The DesignPro tidal energy harvest platform consists of two turbines connected to the slow speed shafts of their gearboxes, while the high-speed side of each gearbox drives the associated induction machine. The induction machines connect electrically to the converter via two 3-phase power converters, shown in blue in the above block diagram, indicated as VSD#1 and VSD#2. The induction machines are operated in an open stator configuration, which means that a total of six power cables run between each induction machine and the converter. The variable speed drives are capable of producing variable voltage and frequency waveforms, which are applied to the stators of the induction machines. Under normal operating conditions, the variable speed drives operate in regenerative mode and take power from the induction machines and supply power to the common DC circuit, where the grid-facing converter and converts the DC into AC power for exporting to the grid. The complete circuit is designed and configured using various control components from Mitsubishi Electrical in conjunction with a PLC and HMI interface.
