Conflicting class cross-search list used in Irish Patents Office

When an application is being searched to determine if there are any earlier marks, which may conflict with the mark being applied for, it is necessary to identify which other classes of goods or services may contain similar goods or services to those for which registration is being sought. The attached cross-search list sets out the other classes, which an applicant should consider searching, in addition to the class(es) for which protection is being sought.
